

Curious about climate change
but turned off by the politics?
Don't miss this terrific program presented by

C-CHANGE CONVERSATIONS!

Monday, October 28th at 7:00 p.m.
Nazareth College Arts Center / Peace Theater

(this event is free and open to the public/parking is available in Lot A)

Allyn's Creek Garden Club is honored to host this dynamic and completely non-partisan discussion of climate change. The "C-Change Primer" presentation, with speakers Sophie Glover and Kim Haren, provides an accessible overview of the science behind climate change and a clear-eyed assessment of the potential risks ahead. It frames climate change in terms of the three areas that are important to so many Americans, jobs and the economy, health and personal security, and terrorism, the refugee crisis, and geopolitical security. Please join us, and participate in the conversation.

C-Change Conversations, a Princeton, NJ-based nonprofit organization, developed the Primer in consultation with independent climate scientists and public policy specialists.
